OPERATING HIGHLIGHTS

01 The Company continues to advance the sale of non-strategic assets, simplifying its structure and concentrating resources on its core business areas.

02 Launch of Kento, an AI agent with memory and context, integrated with Economatica's database, providing a unique experience to assist clients in their day-to-day activities.

03 The strategic change and cost reduction plan remains on track, with expectations of additional cost reductions in 2H26.

FINANCIAL HIGHLIGHTS

01 Adjusted gross margin reached 57,5%, an expansion of 24,3 p.p. vs. 2Q25, reflecting the higher profitability of the revenue base.

02 Adjusted EBITDA improved 82,6% vs. 2Q25, to -R$ 1,10 million, reflecting the change in strategy and execution of the cost reduction plan.

03 Revenue per employee increased 73,8% vs. 2Q25, to R$ 86,83 thousand, reflecting operating efficiency gains and favorable seasonality at Sencon.

03 Message from Management

We continue to execute the plan announced last quarter, with progress in the key indicators. Economatica and Sencon, the group's two main business units, grew revenue compared with the same period of the prior year.

Economatica celebrates its 40th anniversary in 2026. Over these four decades, it has built extensive historical databases and proprietary data that represent an especially valuable asset in the age of artificial intelligence. The company is positioning Economatica with new products and services to transform this accumulated intelligence into growth opportunities.

On the operating front, the company advanced its normalization process. The plan's primary objective—to end cash burn and stabilize operations—is close to being achieved. 2Q26 benefited from favorable seasonality in Sencon's revenue, related to the individual income tax filing period. Even with this effect normalizing in the coming periods, we expect sequential quarter-over-quarter improvement, supported by the efficiency measures underway.

Execution is more rigorous than initially planned. We revised our estimate of annualized expense reductions from R$ 16,8 million to R$ 19,42 million. The quarter still absorbed costs related to the brokerage and the app. Despite the delay in selling this asset, we completed the planned cuts and increased the estimated savings.

We continue to invest in strategic opportunities. After integrating its data and intelligence into channels and platforms such as Claude, ChatGPT, Copilot, AWS Bedrock, WhatsApp, and Telegram, Economatica launched Kento, its artificial intelligence agent designed for financial market professionals.

Kento is not a chatbot. It is an agent that researches, analyzes data, prepares materials, and performs routines using the intelligence and databases built by Economatica over 40 years, including proprietary data. It preserves each organization's context, develops memory through use, and progressively becomes more aligned with each client's operations.

Brokerage firms, asset managers, analysis and research teams, Investor Relations departments, advisory firms, and consultancies can incorporate Kento into their operations. In its proprietary Workspace, the agent researches, analyzes data, prepares materials, and performs tasks, enhancing the productivity of different financial market professionals.

In addition to the Workspace, Kento accompanies professionals across the channels that are already part of their daily routines. This multichannel presence allows the organization to apply identity, permissions, traceability, and auditing to interactions conducted through the agent.

03 Message from Management · continuação

The combination of agent, contextual memory, multichannel presence, governance, and deep financial databases positions Economatica to transform its primary asset into new products and growth opportunities in the age of artificial intelligence.

I thank our team for its work and dedication during this restructuring period, and our shareholders for their confidence in our work.
